Incendiaries at Country Club

Four Buildings at Exclusive Westchester-Biltmore Club Set Ablaze; Guests at Club House Seized With Panic.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Harrison, N. Y., July 30.—Fire bugs today set ablaze four buildings on the property of the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, one of the most exclusive of the country.

Two residences, the gun club and a gate house were burned. Oil had been poured on the buildings.

Police are holding two men, whose names they would not divulge.

Panic seized the many guests sleeping in the rooms of the club house itself when the flames were discovered. The Westchester-Biltmore Club numbers among its members some of the most famous names in New York society.

Police said they could assign no motive for the act. They expressed no doubt, however, that the fires were of incendiary nature. All broke out at approximately the same time.

Judge Defends His Constable
Police Justice McKenzie Tries to Come to Rescue of Constable Who Collects Bail From Motorists and Seizes Operator's License and Registration Cards.

Port Ewen, N. Y., July 30, 1925. To the Editor of The Freeman:

An article in your paper of Wednesday evening has a suspicious appearance where it refers to Officer Phillips. It was instigated by some one in the interest of an important group for the purpose of depreciating the good work of an efficient officer, or by some scoundrel whose occupation enables him to edit an uncalculated and for opprobrious item without fear of inspection of a superior officer of your valuable paper.

The item is in the main a collection of garbage composed of a man whose occupation is a printer or reporter for your paper and whose idea of gratitude is so small as to be hardly perceptible.

The instigator of this sentimental demonstration must have been influenced by the merchandise he was seeking and obtained; if he was sincere in his expression to the officer.

If I am correctly informed the author of this amazing effusion committed the most flagrant violation of the traffic law, and only the humble obedience of the accused caused the officer to leave the same unpunished.

Instead of the Holy Water he said he was endeavoring to procure having a good effect, the contrary was the result and he has risen in his wrath to misrepresent the affair and traduce an officer of the law whose sole duty was to regulate traffic and protect decent and cautious automobile drivers from the wild and audacious acts of a presumptuous and egotistical pressman.

After being arrested and released because of whining excuses, he should have exhibited a more gentlemanly spirit. Nothing is there more friendly to a man than a friend in need and the officer proved to be that friend when he refused to prosecute, and the gratitude of some men is but a secret desire of receiving a greater benefit.

To explain, there was no demand by the officer for any bond or otherwise, and it was only upon the request and earnest solicitation of the offenders to be released on account of urgent business, and upon notice to appear in court, a small deposit was made to secure their appearance and the same has been turned over to me, which amounts I still have, and no appearance has been made in either of the two cases.

The writer of the article referred to did not make a deposit for the reason also referred to.

HENRY E. MCKENZIE,
Police Justice.

This letter, if it means anything, is an evident attempt to justify bail collection and the withholding of an operator's license and registration card by an officer—a legal question which The Freeman does not attempt to discuss.

The account published in The Freeman was correct. Police Justice McKenzie to the contrary notwithstanding, and there is a growing belief that an investigation of the officer and justice should be made. The Automobile Club of Ulster County might well justify its existence by taking up the matter.

Short and Edward Burns; clerk, John V. Hogan.

Eighth Ward.
Inspectors, Leo W. Clare and Benjamin Bergman; clerk, Charles Gasca.

Ninth Ward.
Inspectors, John F. McGraw and James J. Claiborne; clerk, Raymond J. Ross.

Tenth Ward.
First district inspectors, George W. Lacy and Grace C. DuBois; clerk, Fred Tack.
Second district inspectors, Loretta Bonestell and Harry C. Van Buren; clerk, Stephen Cahill.

Eleventh Ward.
Inspectors, Christopher J. Story and William H. Ball; clerk, Augustus R. Schrowang.

Twelfth Ward.
First district inspectors, Thomas J. Cusack and George L. Zeller; clerk, William McLaughlin.
Second district inspectors, Edward J. Cullen and Pearl H. Auchmoody; clerk, Carol F. Kearney.

Thirteenth Ward.
Inspectors, Thomas Glennon and Timothy Georzeban; clerk, Charles

Busy Remodeling Mann Building
The work of remodeling the former Mann building on lower Broadway into a Jewish Community Center has been started and work is now progressing. The building was recently purchased and contracts have been awarded to the Casfield Supply Company for the plumbing and heating, Joe Len for the carpenter work and to Kennedy of Leopold for the mason work. The building will be connected with the Hebrew School in the rear and when alterations are completed will be used for a community center.

Bryan's Burial Among Military Men Minus Pomp

Only "Taps" Will Be Sounded Over His Grave Although He Is Entitled to Military Honors Which War Department Offered—Funeral Train Reaches Washington.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, July 30.—William Jennings Bryan, the Commoner, who devoted a good part of his eventful life to the cause of peace, will be buried among the military heroes in Arlington in his favorite role—as an "apostle of peace."

To this end, his grief-stricken, invalid widow dispensed today with virtually all of the military honors that were his by right, and which it had been planned to accord him tomorrow when his body is placed in its final resting place in the Valhalla of American heroes.

There will be no artillery caisson, with its flag-draped casket and black horses for the Commoner, no slowly marching army band with its dirgeful march from Chopin; no clanking cavalry horses and rhythmic tramp of infantry, to accompany his body from the capital to its final resting place.

Mrs. Bryan Wants Simplicity.
Informed that the war department stood ready to furnish these tripings of rank and eminence, Mrs. Bryan said she did not want them. She wanted, she said, the Commoner to be buried as the private citizen he was during nearly all of his long life.

Consequently, when the body of the dead leader is borne tomorrow from the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, "the church of Presidents," it will be in a private hearse, without other than the necessary police escort to clear the way to the gates of Arlington.

Only inside the cemetery will there be anything approaching military show. At the cemetery gates there will be a small military escort to the grave.

"Taps" Will Be Sounded.
Even the usual salute of rifles over the grave will be dispensed with. Only the sweetly beautiful strains of "Taps" will float out from the green knoll of Arlington as the body of the Commoner is lowered into the earth.

"Taps" carries the message of eternal sleep for civilians as well as for the military.

At the south gate of Arlington the private black hearse will be met by the band from Fort Meyer and three batteries of field artillery, dismounted.

These arrangements completed today, Mrs. Bryan retired to the seclusion of her hotel.

Soon after her arrival, Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, late candidate for vice-president, arrived at the hotel to comfort her.

Funeral Train Arrives.
Sorrowing crowds met the Bryan funeral train on its arrival here early this morning. The great Commoner, home from the field of his last battle, a mighty crusade against all foes of fundamental religion, was accorded the same silent tribute by capital throngs as he won all along the route from Dayton, Tenn., where he fell asleep last Sunday.

The funeral train came in slightly behind schedule, due to the great throngs that gathered at the stations throughout the night. Due to arrive at 7:30 o'clock, it lacked but a few minutes of 8 o'clock when the train pulled into Union Station.

Even at this early hour, the big concourse was packed with several thousand people, some of whom had been waiting for hours.

The big flag in the Plaza in front of Union Station was at half mast as the train drew in—an honor not usually accorded.

Old Friends Waiting.
Police barred most of the waiting throngs from the station platform. A party of old friends of the Bryan family, and a number of congressmen were permitted to go to the lower level to meet the train.

Mrs. Bryan's first words were that she did not want "any military display" in connection with the services.

In Mrs. Bryan's immediate party were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. Owens; S. Bryan Jennings, a nephew; Wallace Hazard, one of the Dayton counsel; Richard Rogers of Dayton, in whose home the Commoner died; and Keise Rice, the young Chattanooga policeman who acted as a guard of honor to a mate.

The night journey through Virginia was a succession of fleeting glimpses where people gathered to pay tribute to the Commoner's greatness.

At Lynchburg at 2:45 o'clock this morning, there were 2,000 people massed around the station where a brief halt was made.

Widow in Invalid's Chair.
Mrs. Bryan remained aboard the train until 4:25 o'clock. She left the train in her invalid's wheel chair, a sorrowful figure in black, and was wheeled down through the packed concourse where a porter waited to take her to the Lafayette Hotel, which was always her husband's headquarters when he was in the capital. It was said to be selected this hastily because, even in pre-arranged days, it never had a bar.

The casket was borne from its car ten minutes after Mrs. Bryan and her party had gone.

Two hearsemen waited. Into one was placed the casket, and into the other went a conspicuous mass of flowers. Accompanied by a single mourner and a police escort of six.

Conners's Charity Gift $1,000,000

Noted Politician Establishes Charity Foundation to be Administered Equally by Catholic, Protestant and Jewish Trustees.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 30.—William J. Conners, owner of the Buffalo Courier and the Buffalo Star-Enquirer and millionaire head of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation today announced the establishment of a charity foundation with a gift of $1,000,000 as a starting point.

The charity will be controlled by a board of six trustees, consisting of two Catholics, two Protestants and two Jews. The Catholics will be represented by William J. Conners, Jr., and former Justice Daniel J. Keeneck, the Protestants by Dr. Henry C. Buswell and Howard Bissell, president of the Peoples Bank, and the Jews by Eugene L. Falk and Emanuel Boasberg.

The charity will be known as the Conners Foundation and Mr. Conners hopes to bring his contribution up to $5,000,000 within the next year or two.

Herbert Anderson Died Suddenly
Herbert Anderson, aged 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Anderson of 172 Main street, died suddenly this morning at 9 o'clock at the oil storage plant on Deyo street of the Texaco Oil Company where he had been employed as a chauffeur, driving one of the large oil trucks during the summer vacation.

Immediately after young Anderson became sick Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeek was called but Anderson was beyond medical aid, dying shortly after the doctor's arrival. Coroner Conner was notified and pronounced death due to acute indigestion.

Besides his parents the deceased young man is survived by one sister, Maude M. Young. Anderson graduated from the Kingston High School and was one of the most popular students there. He was very active in athletics, being one of the mainstays on the baseball, basketball and football teams. News of his death will be received with great regret by his many friends in this city. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

ITALIAN PRINCESS WILL MARRY EX-KAISER'S NEPHEW
By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, July 30.—The ceremony of the marriage of Princess Mafalda, second daughter of the king and queen of Italy, and Prince Philip of Hesse, nephew of the ex-king of Germany, will be solemnized on September 23 next, according to a Central News dispatch from Rome today.

Sunday Services at Rifton.
There will be service at St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Rifton, the Rev. James G. Cameron in charge, on Sunday next, at three o'clock.

The Rev. G. E. Kerr will preach at the Methodist Church Sunday morning, August 2. The service begins at 11 o'clock.

motorcycle officers, the hearse went quickly to the mortuary.

The crowd melted away. That was the Commoner's last entrance into the capital.

Cycle of Strange Contrasts.
In death as in life the Commoner will follow a course all his own.

From the moment he leaves the Presbyterian Church on his last journey tomorrow, he will follow a cycle of strange contrasts. First, the funeral cortege, touching on Pennsylvania avenue, will just miss the White House even as the Commoner did in life on his three memorable attempts for the presidency.

Then, Bryan will cross the Potomac, swinging away from the Cathedral where Woodrow Wilson rests, parting from the war time president even in death. And lastly, on into the green woods of Arlington, the apostle of peace who fought war all his life will go to final eternal sleep among warriors.

The Commoner will rest on Dewey's Knoll, a green eminence overlooking the capital. His comrades through the ages will be the "Unknown Soldier," generals of the army, admirals of the navy and thousands of soldiers, sailors and marines, some even named.

From this final resting place the spirit of Bryan can look out across the Potomac to the White House, the Commoner's "Castle in Spain" for a quarter century, to Washington's Monument, the Lincoln Memorial, and in the long distance, the capitol, where he first served national political life as an obscure congressman from Nebraska. And off to the northwest, he can see even the spires of St. Albans where Wilson sleeps.

Government Shows Respect.
All Washington will join in the final tribute to Bryan. High government officials, national political leaders, members of the legislative corps and members of Congress will attend the services tomorrow in the church.

Tens of thousands of government workers and his countrymen from humble walks of life will pay his body as it lies in state his afternoon and tomorrow forenoon.

The government staff will be off here early today for the Virginia road where it will guard the casket, with additional reinforcements with the U. S. Texas.

Indifference Is Foe of the Army

Major General Bullard Says Much Further Economizing Will Practically Wipe Out America's National Defense.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, July 30.—Major General Bullard, U. S. A., retired, was frankly pessimistic over plans of the Washington government to economize by cutting the appropriations for the army or navy as he sailed today on the Zealand to visit his son, who is a United States army officer in the French high school of war, Paris.

"Much further economizing now will catch national defense in such a formative state that it is likely to be in effect wiped out," said General Bullard.

"Senator Hale has called attention to the ends of the navy. I should like to see another senator focus the public eye on the needs of the army. General Pershing still demands 150,000 regular troops. In addition to its other enemies, the army has a foe in public indifference."

All three actions are brought under the law which gives to district attorneys the right to bring civil actions, upon information and belief, in the name of the United States of America against places which it is alleged have violated the prohibition act and on the grounds that public and common nuisances exist on the premises.

Sherry Manor, conducted by Mrs. Sherry on the Kingston-Saugerties road was closed some time ago under the same authority. The Sherry place was the first place in the county to be closed under this authority given to district attorneys.

In all cases injunction orders were signed by Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck on Wednesday and the summons and complaint together with copies of the temporary injunctions were served the same day in all cases by the sheriff's office.

In all three cases the summons and complaint sets forth the facts that on recent dates intoxicating liquors, as defined by Section 1, Title II, of the National Prohibition Act, have been habitually, continually and recurrently sold, kept and bartered for beverage purposes by the defendants and their agents and servants.

The summons and complaints also set forth, on information and belief, that unless restrained and forbidden by the injunction of the court the defendants and their agents will continue to sell in violation of the law.

Application is therefore made demanding judgment: first, enjoining and restraining the defendants and their agents from using and assisting in using and maintaining the premises named; second, that no intoxicating liquors shall be sold, bartered, kept or stored on the premises and the premises shall not be occupied for a period of one year from the date of judgment; third, that the sheriff and the county of Ulster be commanded and directed summarily to abate the nuisance and for that purpose take possession of the premises and close them, taking possession of all intoxicating liquors found on the premises; fourth, that upon final determination of the action, all liquors be destroyed, and sixth, that temporary injunctions be granted pending the disposition of the actions.

With the summons and complaints filed with the court in making application for the temporary injunctions were affidavits of persons who purchased alleged intoxicating liquors at each of the three places and consumed the liquor on the premises. In addition to the liquor sold and consumed on the premises at each of the three places all of the whiskey was purchased in bottles and after being sealed was delivered to the district attorney for analysis.

GENERAL WOOD'S SON SET BY WIFE FOR DIVORCE
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Winchester, Ind., July 30.—Salt has been entered in the superior court by Mrs. O. W. Wood, of "Good and Famous" Greenville, Ind., near Terre Haute, for divorce from O. W. Wood, son of Major General Leonard Wood, sometime lieutenant in the United States Army and winner of a large fortune in Wall Street and loser of this fortune abroad, it was learned today.

No disclosures were made of the grounds upon which the suit is based. Mrs. Wood and her children are now vacationing at her cottage at Southampton, Long Island, her parents are at Cape May, N. J., and the present whereabouts of Wood are unknown, although it is believed he is somewhere in Florida.

Granted Divorce Decree.
An interlocutory decree of divorce has been granted by Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck to plaintiff in the action for an absolute divorce brought by Frank P. Slater against Grace Slater. The parties were married in Ulster county, October 21, 1915, and there is no issue of the marriage. Grant M. Slater was attorney for plaintiff, W. D. Brimmer, Jr., of counsel.

The left bank of any river is that which is left to a person facing downstream. You hear so much about the Rhine's left bank because of its military and political significance. For more than a hundred miles north from the Swiss border the Rhine divides Baden from France, and the left bank is French. Below this stretch, the left bank is the hostage held by the allied armies of occupation to guarantee German obedience to the peace terms.

Hobbies of the Great and the Near Great

Being a Series of Intimate Glimpses Into the Fads and Foibles of Well-Known Figures in National Life.

This is the tenth of a series of intimate sketches which reveal the national political figure as a "brother under the skin" to the man behind the plow, the white collar worker or the day laborer. Others will follow.

SENATOR CARTER GLASS.

Although his political fortunes included a term as secretary of the treasury and a close race for the Democratic presidential nomination last year, the hobbies of Senator Carter Glass (D., of Va.) carry him far afield from the cycles of finance and politics.

The Senator has two great hobbies, each rivaling the other for his affection. They are the publishing of newspapers and the raising of blooded dairy stock.

Glass has given most of his time recently to the herd, which he keeps on a magnificent dairy farm near Lynchburg, Va. It is said he owns the best dairy farm in the state and that all his cows are blue-blooded, registered Jerseys. He spends every spare hour wandering about the farm, personally supervising the care of his cattle.

This hobby almost caused Glass to commit a "Dawes" by missing the famous confirmation note at the last session of congress on the appointment of Charles B. Warren as attorney general. Glass slipped away the day before the vote to visit his farm for the purpose of showing his blue-blooded stock to Congressman Reburn of North Carolina. Frantic Democratic attaches finally located him early on the morning of the vote, and Glass barely reached the Senate in time to cast his vote against Warren. As it was, the failure of Vice President Dawes to attend the session made Glass's the deciding vote.

Cows Political Factor.

The senator's political career really brought the herd into existence and created this hobby. When Glass first ran for congress his opponent posed as a "friend of the people," while denouncing Glass as a white-collared city fellow who didn't know the needs of the people. He went so far as to challenge Glass to prove he could represent the common people.

"Why," said the opponent, in effect, "Glass would be lost on a farm. He doesn't know the needs of the common people."

This attack aroused the Senator's ire. He straightway announced he did know the common people's needs, because he was fully familiar with farm life. As proof, he challenged his opponent to a milking contest, while declaring he was perfectly willing to have the election awarded to the candidate who got the most milk in five minutes' time. His opponent backed down, and Glass won the seat in Congress.

He immediately purchased a small dairy herd and learned the art of milking. The reason why, as he naively explained it, was this:

"If my opponent had accepted that challenge to a milking contest, I never would have gone to Congress. That fellow could milk some, and I knew nothing about it at all."

His herd soon grew, for stock-raising became the Senator's hobby. Now he's an authority on blooded cattle.

Worked On Paper.

In his newspaper career the Senator has served in all capacities of the profession. He was printer's devil, a reporter, an editor, a business manager, editorial writer and a publisher. He now publishes two newspapers in Lynchburg, Va.—one morning and afternoon. He writes editorials frequently, usually ignoring national issues to wield his pen in behalf of local policies.

The Senator has warm spot in his heart for boys seeking an education. He is self-educated, having started his studies while working at his first job as a printer's devil. Today there are few men in the Senate more learned or more widely read than the Senator from Virginia. Indeed, his intellect was one of personal attractions on which was founded his warm friendship with the late Woodrow Wilson.

The Senator has two secret weaknesses. One is a fondness of eating dry crusts of bread and the other is a habit of carrying a bag of mint lozenges. The latter has caused Glass to act as a throat-doctor in the Senate on more than one occasion. His colleagues, getting hoarse after long debate, always know they can get relief from Glass's little bag of mints.

Tomorrow — Senator David A. Reed.

"Mark Twain"

In "Life on the Mississippi" is the story of a cocky young pilot whom the crew of the boat made the butt of a practical joke. While navigating one of the deepest places on the river they gave false soundings. He was finally frightened into ordering the engineer to back the ship. The leadman's cry: "Mark three, quarter-less-three, half twain, quarter twain, mark twain," suggested the pen name of the greatest American humorist.

The car was found near an oil station on Albany avenue by Emanuel Miller of 412 Albany avenue.

Offers Site for Highland School

The Highland board of education has been offered the gift of four acres of land for a site for a new school house, the donor being John Schuble. The erection of a new school house is contemplated and in their search for a site the members of the board asked Mr. Schuble to give them a price on four acres of land, a part of the tract recently purchased by him from Mrs. Vail. Mr. Schuble said he would think it over. He has now informed the board that there is no price and that any four acres they want, fronting on the new street he is about to open, will be deeded the board as a gift.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 30.—Speculative interest shifted to the railroad stocks today. While industrial and motor stocks were under profit taking, there was nothing to indicate that the "bull movement" had reached its conclusion. Sharp rallies in the market followed most of the occasional declines.

Railroad reports showed the class one roads 40 per cent over the same month last year in net earnings, an almost unprecedented advance. Heavy selling in the general list around the noon period was well absorbed and the industrial stocks exhibited another rising tendency. The railroad stocks retained most of their new gains, but efforts to "bull" the railroad list as a whole were generally unsuccessful. Independent Oil shares were as conspicuous in the reaction. Stocks of the mercantile companies lapsed into inactivity, and transactions in the copper, shipping, equipment, independent steel, sugar and public utility companies were likewise comparatively small.

Madison, Wis., July 30.—Robert H. LaFollette announced today that he would be a candidate to succeed his father as United States senator.

A Cow and Her Horn

Paul, age four, was making his first visit in the country and was introduced to the cow. The animal's horns interested him most as his only experience with horns had been with those of the campaign variety. Later, while at dinner, Paul heard the cow bawled and called out: "Oh, mamma, listen to that cow blowing her horn."

Clay Plated Stake
For Barnyard Golf
At County Picnic

Horse shoe pitching for the Chamber of Commerce cup this year will be a contest of skill, with all chances eliminated, if Joe Deyo of Gardiner has his way about it. Mr. Deyo says that is the way they do it in Florida at the international tournament and that is the way the international rules require it to be done. Heretofore, in their crude way, the Ulster county barnyard golfers have been pitching horse shoes on any kind of ground, usually dry and frequently sandy, with the result that the ground gets all cut up and the shoe bounces around, thus introducing the element of chance.

International rules call for surrounding the stake with wet clay, so that the shoe will stay where it lands. Then the game is one of pure skill, nothing being left to the chance of the shoe bouncing or sliding. Many a fine pitch has been spoiled because the shoe skidded away off in the loose sand.

Mr. Deyo was empowered by the general committee in charge of the Chamber of Commerce and Farm and Home Bureau picnic to see that the international rules are lived up to, which will involve the alleys, courts, diamonds, rings or whatever the proper term is for the place where horseshoes are pitched, are coated with clay and the clay kept wet at Forsyth Park on Friday, August 28, when the picnic is held.

To Set Fire to Cockroach Home

A final drive to rid North Manor avenue and vicinity of the pest of what has been identified as a German cockroach was planned for this afternoon by Superintendent W. C. Scott Van Keuren of the board of public works who announced that the city dump on Manor Place would be set on fire in an effort to exterminate what bugs remain and also destroy the nest of eggs.
The dump has been saturated with gasoline and in order to prevent all danger from fire to property in the vicinity Chief Murphy of the fire department had several men and a line of hose ready to combat the flames if necessary.

Society Notes

A Birthday Party.
Mrs. Uley gave a birthday party to Gordon Core of New York city at her home on DeWitt street, Tuesday evening. The house was beautifully decorated with Japanese lanterns and wild flowers. The evening was spent in dancing and games. Vocal selections were also rendered. Refreshments were served at midnight. An enormous birthday cake was the center of attraction. Among those present were: Mrs. Johnson of New York city, Catherine Schick and Margaret Beckford of Connelly, Florence Madden, Catherine and Elizabeth Schick, Florence Hoffman, Mary Graham, Alice and Sarah O'Neill, Margaret O'Neill and Marjorie Utley, Gordon Core, George Schick, Dave Graham, Arthur and Walter Hoffmann, Michael Gallagher, Joe McDermott, Robert McGreevy, Henry Edwards and Hugh Johnson, Thomas Rooney, Donald Utley and Officer Schick. All departed in the early hours of the morning, wishing Gordon many more happy birthdays.

John R. Beesimer died at his home at Krumville on Wednesday, July 29, aged 61 years. Funeral from the Krumville Church on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, standard time, with interment in the Krumville Cemetery.

The funeral of Mildred Tronson, wife of Henry Barmann, of North Manor avenue, was held from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tronson, 20 Park street, on Wednesday afternoon. The deceased having a great number of friends throughout the city, the funeral was largely attended. The casket was almost entirely covered with the profusion of beautiful floral tributes. The Rev. Herbert J. Gerhardt, pastor of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, and the Rev. W. H. Pretzsch of the Spring Street Lutheran Church officiated and spoke in high esteem of Mrs. Barmann. The bearers were Charles Whitaker, Fred Gruber, Arthur Thompson, Stephen Keating, Burdette Clark and Kenneth Davis. Interment was in Montrose Cemetery.

KLAN PARADE Dwindles.

Planned For 30,000, Has Dimensions of Lodge Parade.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 30.—The national capital's "great Klan show" on August 5 in which it had been planned to have 30,000 hooded knights march down Pennsylvania avenue, dwindled today to the dimensions of a lodge parade.
There will be only a few thousand from the capital and nearby chapters in Virginia and Maryland. Factional quarrels in the organization were said to have led to abandonment of the plan to stage the show on a national scale.

Wants to Meet Superstitions.

Restoring a Lost Art

The radio and the movies have been of tremendous benefit in acquainting a hysterical world with the benefits of the process known as "singing down." They have taught people to sit quietly for hours at a time, relaxed and silent. Listening was a lost art in this country until the radio came along.—New York Telegraph.

MR. FOX AND HIS RIVAL

ONCE there lived in some deep woods a fox who had gathered during his years of roaming about the country a great deal of wisdom. As he was now getting rather old he decided to turn his knowledge to good account.

"Surely all the things I know are worth something," he reasoned. "I have learned many things through experience. Some I paid for by suffering and other things I learned by keeping my ears and eyes alert."

"Therefore I should be paid by those who care to profit by my teachings and I shall today post a sign on my door telling the woodfolk where they can listen each night to words of wisdom."

Mr. Fox was busy all one morning painting a sign and that evening as the woodfolk wandered along they stopped and read, "Words of wisdom spoken each and every night, rain or moonlight to those who wish to hear them, for a small fee."

Those who first saw the sign ran to tell others and pretty soon a crowd had gathered around the door of Mr. Fox, which made his eyes twinkle, for the larger the crowd the more he would get in fees.

Old Mr. Turtle was stretching his neck, but he could not see well enough to read, so he asked Mr. Rabbit, who was nearest to him, to read what was printed on the sign.

The next day the woodfolk saw on Mr. Turtle's door this sign: "Mr. Turtle, who for over a hundred years has been gathering wisdom, will lecture each night to those who care to improve their minds. A collection will be taken to meet expenses."

"A new broom sweeps clean," quoted Mr. Fox when he heard about Mr. Turtle's sign, and then he added "but too many cooks spoil the broth," so I must use my wits to get ahead of my rival, Mr. Turtle."

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS
By H. IRVING KING

THE THRESHOLD

IN a much-talked-about recent novel the doctor of Gopher Prairie says to his bride, "There! I meant to have you lifted over the threshold." Which shows that the old custom of lifting brides over the threshold when they first enter their new home still lingers among us, as it is, also, a feature of rural weddings in England and Scotland. The mizling up in the minds of our remote ancestors of spiritual and material things caused the threshold to be regarded in a peculiarly mystic manner.

As its name implies, it prevented the grain, the body of the corn-spirit, from sliding out when the chaff flew away at the threshing time. It was that part of the entrance to the house over which all must pass that entered it. Consequently there was a constant struggle to facilitate the entrance of good influences and keep out the spirits of evil by "doctoring" the threshold. Cais were buried under their neighbor's thresholds, personal relics calculated to facilitate the entrance of malign influences. A large nail was driven into the threshold to keep death from entering.

On Walpurgis night the German peasant still lays flowers and branches upon his threshold to keep out the witches; and chips from a threshold used to be thought a valuable ingredient in making smoke for the fumigation of cattle. So as no one knows what witches or evil spirits may have done to the threshold it is better that a bride at the critical moment of her entrance to her new home, should be lifted over it to avoid contagion from the malign influences from touching the possibly-infected door-sill.

Before Peary and Cook

The Greek Pythias, who made a voyage of discovery northwards in 335 B. C. is believed to have been the first traveler of history who probably approached the Arctic circle and reached the land of the midnight sun.

THE SANDMAN STORY

Mr. Fox was running along when he happened to see a bed of nice mushrooms; and knowing that Mr. Turtle liked mushrooms, Mr. Fox had an idea.

He turned right about and ran back to the woods, but he did not stop at his own home. Oh, no; he kept right on until he reached the home of Mr. Turtle.

Mr. Fox said: "Mr. Turtle, I saw a bed of fine mushrooms over the hill; thought you might like to know, as you are fond of them."

Mr. Turtle thanked him and said he would go right over and look at them. Mr. Turtle had stayed late in the mushroom bed, and when he started for home he knew he would never be able to reach there in time for his lecture unless some one gave him a lift and when he saw Mr. Fox trotting along he remembered his ancestor who had won that famous race hundreds of years before from Mr. Hare.

Mr. Fox ran over to the farm, got his supper and was running back at a pretty fast rate of speed; so he did not know when Mr. Turtle reached out his hand and grasped the tip of his tail and held fast to it.

Mr. Fox was thinking of getting home, and how Mr. Turtle must be waddling along somewhere far from home, for he was very certain he went to the mushroom bed. So he was not as careful as he usually was to look where he was going.

Over a stone wall leaped Mr. Fox, and the next thing he knew he was deep in a pond of—mostly mud. A mud bath to Mr. Turtle was fun, and if he had not been in a hurry to reach home he would have liked nothing better than to stay there; but he crawled out and left Mr. Fox wallowing about in the mud.

Before Mr. Fox had come along Mr. Turtle had had time to think, and it had entered his wise old head that Mr. Fox had reasons for being so kind in telling him about the bed of mushrooms, so he called to him as he waddled away: "There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip, Mr. Fox. I shall remember to explain that saying to my audience tonight and tell them, too, how you are unavoidably detained."

Mr. Fox knew that his rival would reach home in time to give his lecture, and he knew, too, that he would be the laughing stock of all the wood folk by morning; so when he did at last get out of the mud he ran for home and pulled down his sign, and then out of the woods he went, to make a home so far away that Mr. Turtle would have to crawl years and years before he found him.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL
Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; its influence; your lucky day, lucky jewel.

FAITH

FROM a Biblical source comes the charming Faith, which sprang into popular usage during the vogue of Puritanical names. The prevalence of appellatives which denoted abstract virtues marked the beginning of Puritanism in England, and many such names came under the ban from other classes because of the widespread dislike of the "Round Heads."

But the simple beauty of Faith, as well as the divine virtue for which the name was symbol, kept her popularity undimmed. For was she not one of the trio whom St. Paul commends to the Corinthians, saying: "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

The Puritans brought Faith to New England when they migrated from their native land, and the name has been universally popular there, at the same time spreading to other sections of the country. It is one of the few feminine appellatives which cannot be contracted.

The pearl is Faith's talismanic gem. It is a fitting symbol of purity for its wearer who will possess enviable charm and affability and have many friends. Wednesday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

Met Natural Death
Two dead whales found floating off the northern California coast were not victims of bombardment by the guns of the battleships in the "battle of Hawaii," as first believed. The whales were killed and mutilated by a school of orca, or killer whales, otherwise known as whales-of-the-sea. Swimmers in dories these killers attack the largest whale much the same as wolves surround and bring down a moose or deer. The orca, which are usually more voracious in the Far North, were attracted south by the presence of fat seals now on the regular pilgrimage to rookeries on the Pacific Islands.

Claims American Fortune

Mrs. Mary O'Connor, Tinsdale of 35 Down street, London, who has been shelling peas in Covent Garden in London for 50 years, and claims the world's championship for that art, has put in claim for the fortune of John O'Connor, the redoubtable shoemaker of Basmah, Neb., who died 12 years ago, leaving a fortune of $130,000, which has grown to $230,000 since. However, she is but one of 300 O'Connors from all over the world who have put in claims for the fortune. Mrs. Tinsdale thinks she is the late redoubt's sister.

COLORADO CALLED RIVER OF MAGIC

Easily Most Dramatic of American Waters.

The Colorado is the most dramatic of American rivers—perhaps, if you put prophecy ahead of history, of all rivers. Given time, which railroads and the swift advance of population have denied, it might have produced a civilization as different from that of its neighbor, the Mississippi, as that of the Mississippi is from the cultures of the Danube and the Rhine. From its inception, 14,000 feet above the sea, through its flaming mile-deep canyons and along its swollen delta, where it has laid down 800 feet of fabulously rich soil, it is a stream with a pulse and personality peculiar to itself. It is the product of a region of abrupt contrasts—of flowing water in an arid land, of monumental rocks and plunging chasms, of flashing futuristic colors. It has none of the classicism of the Hudson or the Potomac; it was carved and painted long ago by some Society of Independent Artists who did not work by precedent. The magic is not wholly out of it even now. Even now it may be capable, despite the transcontinental railways and highways, which spread travel across the river valleys instead of up and down them; despite, also, the motion picture, the radio and the popular magazine, of laying a spell upon the race of men. It may give a new rhythm to their dances, a new cadence to their songs, a new boldness of line and color to their arts. For one cannot think of a population in the valley of the Colorado as serving purely materialistic goals, as sentencing themselves to a dull puritanism.

The Colorado is capricious and full of a wild humor. Its average flow, below the Grand canyon, is about 20,000 second-feet, yet there is good evidence that in time of flood it has sent down as much as 500,000 second-feet—an increase of 2,500 per cent. When a flood of even a third of this volume emerges upon the delta, augmented by the waters of the Gila, the members in the Imperial, the Coachella and the Palo Verde have cause to tremble. Throughout its lower course the river bespides a great horde of silt, which it is raising at the rate of a foot a year and which is now nearly 50 feet above the sea level and from 100 to 300 feet above the level of the Imperial valley. In 1205 it broke through a temporary irrigation intake and flowed for eighteen months into the Salton sea. Had the deluge continued, or if it were to recur, the river would drown out, probably for the life of this generation, 60 per cent of the Imperial's 350,000 acres of cultivated land. "It is a great devil," said one Californian,

Shake Up in Davis Cup Team

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 30.—With an unconfirmed report in circulation today to the effect that William T. Tilden, greatest of all tennis players, would be barred from the Davis Cup matches for tacit violation of the player-writer rule, came the further intimation of a big shake up in the defending team for the 1925 matches. A juvenile star or two such as George M. Lott, Jr., Chicago; Ray Casey, San Francisco, or John Hennessey, Indianapolis, might be named in place of William M. Johnston and H. Norris Williams, it was declared on semi-official authority.

Gold as a banker's handshake, the Davis Cup committee is said to have observed signs of competitive decay in the performances of Johnston and Williams and will want to see an immediate improvement under pain of breaking up the American old guard that has defended the international cup during recent years.

The showdown is scheduled for next week when official tryouts for the team are held for the first time in history and it is the writer's information that not only Lott, Casey and Hennessey will be invited to display what they may have but also A. H. Chapin, W. W. Ingraham, Arnold Jones, Howard Kinsey and perhaps a few others of the younger school.

No C. E. Meetings.
There will be no more Christian Endeavor meetings at the First Dutch Church until the second Sunday in September.

Tagging Major League Bases

The Senators came back like a bad check and added by a four run rally in the eighth against Faber and Walter John's rescue act, disposed of the White Sox, 8 to 6.

Hartnett's homer, his twenty-third of the season, helped the Glants to finish second to the Cubs, 4 to 2, Blake outpitching Greenfield.

For the fifteenth time this season, the Yanks made it two in a row by beating the Browns, 8 to 7, Johnson's homer in the twelfth deciding the issue. Shocker held his old mates hitless for six innings; then folded his tent and silently stole away.

Ehman didn't have the chance of a rubber collar in a stokehole against the hitting of the Indians and the Red Sox took another one on the chin, 10 to 5.

The Pirates stepped out to a 2½ game lead over the Giants by mauling the Braves for the third straight time, 8 to 6. Cooney was good for four innings but the boys jumped him for seven runs and a victory in the fifth.

Hitting Carlson and Pearce when and where they pleased, the Reds made it five in a row and took a firmer grasp upon third place by beating the Phillies 9 to 5.

The Tigers hit Harris 13 times but had 13 left on base, which is all to the vinegar in any league. The Athletics, meantime, slapped three Tiger pitchers plenty and won 10 to 2.

The Dodgers got 15 hits and three runs off Sherdel, the Cardinals got 14 hits and 10 runs off four Dodger pitchers. Short story.

Save Space, Call It Cramp
We will not state it as a positive fact, but have an idea that the town of Big Bend, Texas, was pained in honor of some fellow who had suffered a terrible cramp after eating something that disagreed with him.—Houston Post-Dispatch.

Phelan Plans to Stage Wrestling Matches

Eddie Phelan, sport promoter and baseball player of Poughkeepsie, is planning to stage an elimination champion wrestling match at Poughkeepsie for Hudson valley light-heavy and heavyweight title entrants from eight towns along the Hudson. The towns invited to be represented in the mat contests will be Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Middletown, Rhinebeck, Beacon, Saugerties and Hudson. Port Jervis and Peekskill may also send their grapplers to the Poughkeepsie mat. The tournaments will be staged possibly at Red Sox Park or the Columbus Institute.

The champion in order to hold the belt and trophy must defend his title successfully twice a year for three years. The wrestlers will work on the percentage basis.

Sneaks, brown, at 75 cents, 85 cents and 95 cents; best grade at C. S. Wood's.—Advertisement.
